SEMI-WEEKLY

A. W. PEARSON. Manager

We miss a guess if the arrival of Clarence W. Ashford does not portend some good generalship in the Home Rule camp.

The Democrats have endorsed Dreier, who is running on a Roosevelt platform. This is interesting as showing the chaos of local politics, but how does it suit a Democrat who really thinks that his party has something thinks that his party has something is not connected with them. It might not be a bad plan for the Chamber of Commerce to instruct Delegate Pract to see the Mackay people and urge them to land their cable on the island of Hawaii and bring it through the entire group, thus giving the inter-island telegraphic service which the needs of business require.

The friends of Lattle, alias Smith, doubt that the Hilo Judge went to the coast under a name other than his own. The San Francisco papers had the story at the time and we know of no reason to suppose that they were in error. In the meantime Little, alias Smith, sends nothing from Washington and the supposition is that the Presiand the supposition is that the Presi-dent was busy when he called.

Any citizen who sees a snake should kill it, no matter what the ruling of the Treasury Department may be as to the introduction of raptiles to Hawaii. Custom House officials are no exception. If any man gets into trouble here by slaying an imported serpent, the whole community will take up his case and back him to a finish. As Kaulia remarks: "Kill the snake!"

made enemies by combatting, we com-mend this quotation to the Presidential It comes from the chairman of the Home Rule executive committee.

The late Cecil Rhodes died before his The late Cecil Rhodes died before his political ambitions reached their goal. When the Jameson raid closed in disaster, there were those who said the affair would ruin Rhodes, but the great imperialist replied: "My political career is just beginning." He meant by that to prophesy a war with the Boers, their speedy conquest and the building up of a united South Africa under the British flag. Such a consummation British fiag. Such a consummation might have made Rhodes a peer. The trouble in reaching it, however, preyed on his health, which had been hurt by his long confinement in Kimberley du-ring the siege, and he died before the inevitable success of his vast plans of empire could be reached.

The choice of General Wood of Cuba for lieutenant general of the army would hardly please the Senate as well as it would the President. General would hardly please the Scale and as it would the President. General first anniversary ball on Monday next in Progress Hall. Active preparations are being already made for a grand sistant surgeon in the regular army. Roosevelt got him to take command of the members. Roosevelt got him to take command of his regiment of Rough Riders and afterward, owing mainly to his skill as an administrator, Wood became a brigadler general of the regular army and a major general of volunteers. Gen. Wood has fine executive capacity but he is not an educated soldier. The commander of the army should be a strategist and tactician of long experiment.

Delegate Wilcox informs his friends that "several bills for which he has worked hard, have passed the House and Senate," enumerating three: These are the silver coinage bill, the Parker Ditch bill and Pain's Tramways bill, whatever that may be. In point of fact Wilcox has had nothing to do with the silver bill, which is Mr. Hill's, the man who said, while here, that Wilcox had no standing in Congress. The Ditch bill is a committee substitute for the original Wilcox measure and will had no standing in Congress. The Ditch bill is a committee substitute for the original Wilcox measure and will probably fail in the Senate. Neither measure has passed both Houses. As for the Pain bill it is doubtful if such a measure exists. If so, the Congressional file is ignorant of the fact. It remains as probable as it was a month ago that not a single measure bearing Wilcox's name will become a law.

The prospect of having eight more miles of rapid transit, including a direct line to Waikiki and one up the Nuuanu vailey, is pleasing to nine out of ten of the people of Honolulu. It is the popular wish to get the ramshackie system paralleled as soon as possible and a Waikiki and Nuuanu branch would do it. With the Tramway everywhere elbowed, it is but a question of a short time before that antediluvian outift will find its way to the scrap heap and the glue factory.

Raulia has a new complaint against the Republicans—they defeated the gambling bill which was filed in the Legislature as a Home Rule measure. "Formerly," said this eminent states man. "a native could go down town with thirty-five cents and win enough to keep him in fish. Now, thanks to Dole, where is he?" As an example of the kind of statesmanship Mr. Dole has made enemies by combatting, we compand this quotation to the Presidential.

According to telephonic advices all troubles with laborers on the Kona plantation had been settled by Manager Cowan and Receiver Scott, before the schooner Eclipse left Honokan, and a telephonic message from the Kona estate to that effect was received by the schooner by the agents McChesney, yesterday. There was a time the first of the week when the Japanese refused to work cutting cane of to permit the cane to be taken off, until they had all their back pay and full supplies.
